TEMPERATURE

130 °C

Ingredients

2.2 kg boneless tied leg of lamb

4 ramas fresh rosemary

1 ud lemon (zest and juice)

1 cdita ground black pepper

800 g small potatoes (for the side)

6 cda extra-virgin olive oil DOP (Costa Blanca)

5 dientes garlic cloves, crushed

1 cda flaky salt

3 trozos local almond wood chunks

1 cuenco traditional allioli to serve

Method

1 STEP 1 · MARINATE FOR 3 HOURS

Chop the rosemary, crush the garlic and combine with olive oil, lemon zest and juice, salt and pepper. Brush the leg on every side and rest for 3 hours at room temperature in a tray. Turn every hour.

2 STEP 2 · STABILISE AT 130 °C

Light only one zone of charcoal (Minion method) and set the deflector. Stabilise the kamado at 130 °C indirect for 25 minutes. Once the smoke runs clear blue, add the almond wood chunks.

3 STEP 3 · LOAD THE LEG

Drain the leg from the marinade and pat very dry. Sit it on the grate fat-side up. Push the probe into the geometric centre of the cut and close the lid.

4 STEP 4 · SMOKE 3-4 HOURS

Hold a steady 130 °C. Do not open the lid until the probe reads 50 °C — every peek costs 15 minutes of cook. Watch the smoke: if it turns white and thick, crack the bottom vent a touch.

5 STEP 5 · PULL AT 65 °C

Pull the leg when the probe reads 65 °C internal. Move to a board, tent loosely with foil and rest for 15 minutes. The temperature climbs to 67-68 °C — perfect medium.

6 STEP 6 · POTATOES IN THE SAME KAMADO

While the leg rests, push the kamado to 220 °C by opening the bottom vent. Toss the quartered potatoes with oil, salt and rosemary and load them in a tray for 30 minutes. They pick up the residual almond aroma.

7 STEP 7 · CARVE THIN

Cut the string off the leg. Slice 3-4 mm thin against the grain with a sharp chef knife. Serve immediately with allioli and the smoked potatoes.

Editor's tips

- If you live in the Comunidad Valenciana or Murcia, ask for almond prunings at a local nursery — usually free or very cheap. Dry it 6 months in the sun before using.
- Do not marinate longer than 4 hours — the lemon acidity starts cold-cooking the meat and leaves a mealy surface texture.
- Kamado lamb is best hot but not blistering. If it rests longer than 20 minutes, slice and warm briefly in its own juices before serving.
- For a more festive version, swap one rosemary sprig for fresh mint leaves in the marinade. Works especially well if you serve with lamb couscous.
